From UMD.NET site policies.
Generated: November 24, 2026 4:37 PM ET
Revised: November 18, 2026

Content Approval and Moderation

This text describes our process for approving and moderating user-submitted content.

During review, administrators examine submitted content for violations of the prohibited-content categories outlined in our Terms of Service, including explicit content from users who have not completed verification by providing photo identification and Custodian of Records information. Content that violates these requirements is rejected or removed, while questionable submissions undergo further administrator evaluation before approval.

ImagesUploaded images enter a pending queue where administrators approve or reject each file.

VideoProducers can upload videos and photo ZIP files into their storage, then attach the files to a scene that can be offered for free or sold through our store. Each new scene is placed into a queue where administrators view its content and inspect the teaser imagery and descriptions before approval or rejection.

Text PostsBlogs, stories, forum posts, comments, and similar text are published immediately upon submission. As with all content, published text remains subject to moderation through user reports and administrator review.

External LinksUsers may submit URLs for our public directory. Before publication, administrators visit submitted URLs and examine the destination pages and accessible content for violations of our prohibited-content policies. Violating links are rejected during initial review or removed if violations are discovered after approval. All advertisements use the same approved URLs as their corresponding site listings.

Reporting / Removal ProcessEvery piece of content (including images, videos, external links, and text posts) includes a Report link. Reports are logged in our backend with the reported item and the user’s explanation for administrator review. We respond to all reports, complaints, and takedown requests within five business days. We honor removal requests from any person or model depicted in the content. We share these reports with our biller’s compliance department as required by Visa and Mastercard. We maintain permanent records of all reports and their resolutions.

Violation ResponseWe maintain a complete administrative history for each user account, including staff notes, records of reports and moderation actions, and system logs tied to the user’s actions. For repeated or serious violations, we delete the account and may block further access from the same IP address or prevent registration using the same email address. For lesser violations, administrators can selectively restrict forum and blog posts, private messaging, chatting, or content uploads. We also have the ability to place the account under heightened monitoring so that all sign-ins and other activity are queued for administrator review to identify potential violations.